MISCELLANEOUS ITEMS.

The current interest in Minnesota gathers round a bean eleven inches long.

A girl in Elyria, Ohio, is learning the carpenter's trade.

Mobile, Ala., has just built her first steamboat since the war.

Henry Watterson, the editor of the Louisville Courier-Journal, has returned from his European trip.

Col. Garrick Mallory is the name of the man who attends to the weather while General Myer is in Europe.

The Troy Times has received information that the Ellsworth monument will not be dedicated until after the 25th of September.

The Graphic announces that the balloon will take over letters at $1 each. We haven't any quite so ready, thank you.

There is a report that counterfeit New York city and county bonds, between Flag and Tweed regiments, have been issued.

A citizen of Rock county, Wisconsin, is recorded as saying: "I can always tell water, when I see it—it looks so much like gin."

Five hundred laborers in Washington have petitioned the President to assist them in securing wages withheld from them by the city ring officials.

The Golden Age says there are not two more habitual readers of poetry in the United States than Charles O'Connor and Benjamin F. Butler.

A large-sized whale broke the Indian cable on July 4th, and was subsequently found dead, involved in its coils, where he had fallen helplessly into the power of smaller fishes.

The Sheriff killed Carlin, the negro who was hung at Cairo, Ill., last week, just before he dropped him. This ought to attract the attention of hangmen, everywhere.

The outrages in Kentucky, according to the Louisville Courier-Journal, have no political significance whatever. Democrats are as often the victims as Republicans.

An Omaha woman committed suicide the other day because her husband remonstrated in profane terms when he found a dead horse in a wheat cake.

The personal column of the Cresco, Indiana, Plaindealer is made up of the names of men who visit saloons during the day, with the number of times and other interesting statistics.

One of our Consuls in Germany has earned quite a reputation as a wife-beater, and seems to glory in it. The unfortunate lady who is his wife is frequently obliged to seek protection from her neighbors.

A German hotel keeper having told the Excise Commissioners the other day that he kept no bar, but at dinner he gave his boarders wine from his private bottle, they decided that he must omit the wine or take out a license.

Two moral Poughkeepsie men went over the river on Sunday and fought a prize fight in the woods at Highland. And now we suppose the papers down there will call that "another Ulster county horror."

Some people have been playing it on the authorities of Troy, as they have been peddling them cats three or four times over. If they had sold one cat nine times we could understand how they could make a plausible excuse.

The Port Jervis school authorities have declined to set apart a separate school for Catholic children. When the subject was before the Board, similar petitions were presented from the Methodist and Presbyterian churches.

South Chicago has a town clerk who is unable to read or write English. He was duly elected on the "regular" ticket and though he is totally unable to perform the duties of his office, the Town Board is very much puzzled how to get rid of him.

A Frederickton (N. B.) mother applied glycerine to her infant's face for a skin disease, and placed it in its crib. Returning soon after she found her baby nearly suffocated with flies which, attracted by the glycerine, filled its mouth and nostrils and covered its face. Digging them out with a spoon and dashing water over its face, she just saved its life.

On Saturday morning last several owners of property in that portion of Sing Sing known as Sparta were exceedingly surprised to find that their lands had been mysteriously fenced off during the night. They removed the enclosures and, availing themselves of the opportunity, several Philadelphia arrived on the scene and claimed the property. They were promptly driven off by the vigilantes and have since kept away. The meaning of this action cannot be comprehended.

Paris Cooking.

Henry Watterson, writing to the Louisville Courier-Journal, says of "living" in Paris, that beef and mutton form the basis of everything. By the aid of truffles, mushrooms and olives they are tortured into a thousand forms; and, to this extent, one has no right to complain. He cannot complain of good beef.

He is as an example of complaints, mushrooms, and olives. But, in the long run, a man grows tired of even these luxuries, and begins to "hoop" after something au naturel, such as a bit of stewed terrapin, or a crisp soft-shell crab, or a canvas-back duck, or a pompano, or a plump, fresh partridge, or a young, contraband prairie hen, or even a broiled chicken. He can get none of these in Paris. Their game is nearly always foul. If you get it pure and sweet it is by chance. In cities of such magnitude as this the keeping of game is a sort of necessity. This being the fact that Paris caters long ago got out the notion that game is better the longer it is kept—a rank and poisonous lie.

A party of young bloods residing in a German town recently took it into their heads, to personally the Shah and the members of his suite, and how well they succeeded may be judged from the entertainment which they received in the little village of Kostritz. They entered the town in a special car and soon attracted the attention of the only official about the place. Men such as they had never before been espied in the streets of the ancient borough. Towering far caps nodded above countenances brown, menacing and sinister. Flowing caftans descending to their heels, sometimes disclosed shanks arrayed in gorgeous silk. The whole town soon turned out to welcome them, and the military stationed at the place was drawn up for a grand parade. A feast was provided at short notice, and according to the well preserved medieval custom of the country, an immense pig was butchered and roasted for the benefit of the company. A little later, when the pig had become pork and a sample was presented to the bogus Shah on a plate, he eagerly laid hold of it with his fingers, and, altogether discarding kingly and fork, disposed of a considerable quantity with the sole assistance of his digits. Apparently, they approved the Gera beer. Glass after glass went the way of the pork, the principal personage being quite as active in the dispatch of the refreshing beverage as his companions. At first the bystanders were not a little flattered by the mark of good taste on American Cyclopædia.

Complete in 16 Volumes.

This important work presents a panoramic view of all human knowledge, as it exists at the present moment. It embraces and popularizes every subject that can be thought of, and contains an inexhaustible fund of accurate and practical information. No topic, in brief, is omitted, upon which information can be desired. The work is a library in itself; it is a complete universal instructor, and it is well suited to families. The children who grow up in a house where there is a copy of it will find it a handy and becoming companion. It is the most admirable of all works of reference.

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

CITY NOTES.

—When is Gross going to fill up that gap?

—Flagging stone is being laid on the sidewalk in front of the residence of E. Haller on Warr street.

—Hush! keep still about that corn cob dodge, or every man of us will be scalped.

—Least noise on the pond possible.

—A new ring was formed on Friday night on Madison's corner. Four of our heaviest men are inside.

—C. Basch is putting up a substantial brick building on Hudson street opposite Brown's Pond.

—Why can't our city have its streets numbered and labeled? Strangers complain of being unable to find anybody.

—Afternoon Cordis, who purchased Mr. Osterhoudt's house and furniture on the Weinberg, has presented the property to his newly married daughter.

Coal Arrival.

Yesterday 47 canal boats laden with 7,293 tons of coal reached tide water at Edgewater through the Delaware and Hudson canal.

The Civil Damage Case.

"Squire Chippy, up-town, has decided the civil damage case of Thomas Delany vs. J. M. Brier. Brier is in favor of the plaintiff to the amount of $500.

Walkill Valley Railway.

The earnings of the Walkill Valley Railway, for transporting passengers during the past month, were about $4,000, and the total earnings for the summer of this year were double those of the summer of 1872. The road-bed has been much improved and efforts are being made to put the Company on a sound financial basis.

Tremaine Brothers Concert.

The folks up-town are waiting patiently for the appearance of the Tremaine Brothers, who are great favorites with all classes. Their concert has a happy combination of good singing, and good fun, and never fail to have a full house. The last time they were here the chap who personated a woman carried the audience by storm. At the close of his song he gave an item in a deep-drawl voice, and as he disappeared off the stage a certain up-town gentleman, was heard to remark, "Why, it sounded just like a man, didn't it?" and that chap to this day believes it was a woman. We need hardly say that C. Pierson will make any one laugh. It's enough to look at him to cause a laugh when personating a drunken man; he is drunk all through, from his toes to the top of his head.

Travelled, He Had.

The Eagle's lundee was loading to crowd in front of his hotel on Friday morning, that no New York pickpockets could rob him; he had travelled, he had, to the city and a great many other places, and never yet had anything stolen from him. Just at that moment some one asked him the time of day, when to his utter astonishment and alarm he found a hundred dollar watch, with chain, had suddenly disappeared from his vest pocket. Then that Eagle man was excited, and for a time it was thought the street wouldn't hold him. One or two gentlemen were promptly searched, but the watch could not be found until some fifteen minutes had passed, when it was finally handed back to a plain farmer from the country, who had taken it from the landlady's pocket during his bar-har-gue, just for the fun of the thing. It is needless to say the landlady treated like a man, and don't brag any more.

Sam Sharpley and Sheridan and Mack's Combination Tonight.

Sam Sharpley's minstrel troupe, together with Sheridan and Mack's combination, give one of their imitable entertainments in Washington Hall to-night. Sharpley is an old favorite with this community, he is not only a complete show in himself but always has a first-class troupe in his employ on his annual tour. Sheridan and Mack as character artists are simply unexcelled, and wherever they have appeared the press is loud in their praise. Mr. Fred and Annie McAvoy, the vocalists and delineators of Irish character, are also of the party, and their reputation is second to none in their line. Little Frank Casey will appear in his incomparable songs and dances and comicities. Miss Alicia Jordan, a brilliant serio-comic vocalist, who is a wonder in her impersonations of male as well as female character, and Miss Ada Boshell, a noted dancer, also lends her share to the entertainment of the audience. Beside the above-mentioned artists, there are Messrs. T. T. Boles, a pianist, and T. H. Maynard, a violinist, making up a most talented company, who give one of the most pleasing entertainments of any party on the road.

How R. E. Best Lost His Trout.

Mr. R. E. Best went trout-fishing Thursday, and brought home a fine lot of trout. After having distributed the bigger portion of the lot to his friends, he reserved a nice mess for himself and a young lawyer who boards at the same place (Hawthorn Hotel), and told the steward to cook them nicely for supper. When the supper bell rang, the two hurried to the dining room, their mouths in splendid shape to partake of the delicate and savory mess. When they had become seated, the trout were placed before them. As it happened, however, at the same time that a young German who had not been a resident of this country for a very long time, and so was not posted in regard to the peculiar customs of hotel boards, the moment the dish touched the table the Teuton laid his hands on it, and commenced to eat the fish at a rate that showed quite conclusively a most ravenous appetite. For once in his life Best was taken all back. He could only utter a cry, and his companion with a look of utter amazement, not unmixed with alarm, depicted on his face, and whisper, "By—what cheek?" We need not tell the sequel, for any one might imagine the feelings of the man who didn't get any trout.

Strange Conduct of Some Up-town Folks.

A party of gentlemen from the upper part of the city started to go to camp-meeting at Newporth Wednesday morning on the early train, and had a somewhat disagreeable experience, but didn't get to camp-meeting at all, though they were gone the better part of two days. After getting aboard the train they thought they would take a nap, and unfortunately didn't wake up until the train ran into Goshen. Then they went to the Goshen races as a sort of offset to the meeting, and spent the day there. At night they hurried to the train, and encoined themselves in the passenger car. The train started, and after riding three miles the conductor came to collect the fare, when they found they had by mistake boarded a train going to New York. The train was stopped, and the chaps got out and walked back to Goshen, where they arrived just in time to be too late for the train coming to this city. Then these chaps went to bed, and Thursday morning came home direct; didn't care to run the risk of going to the camp ground for fear they might make some more mistakes.

RIVER NOTES.

The title of Dr. Wakley's new book, now in press, is "The Methodism of Methodism; or the Life and Sermons of Dr. Joseph Beaumont."

Catharine Sharts, an aged lady residing in Hudson, died very suddenly, Tuesday night. She was in apparent good health until within a few moments of her decease.

The total number of boats cleared during August at West Troy was 4,972. Amount of this cleared: May, $1,132.15; June, $14,190.10; July, $15,104.60; August, $12,207.44; total, $52,760.45.

The steam tug C. P. White, which was seized at Troy yesterday for damage done to the canal boat Clio, was recovered by the owners, who gave bonds in the sum of $1,000. The case will be tried at Buffalo, Sept. 30.

James Maguire, captain of the canal boat James T. Murray, lying at the foot of D. V. street, Troy, while drunk on Tuesday evening in the ferry-way, was robbed of $96 in money.

About six o'clock Wednesday evening a fire was discovered in the Albany cotton mill. Troy. It originated in the card room, but fortunately was speedily extinguished by the engine in that locality. The Whig says the damage will amount to $200, fully insured.

The La Verne of Cornell's line, which broke down on her trial trip after receiving an extensive overhauling, did not have the work done at McNamee & Dillon's foundry, though she laid at their dock. Mr. Cornell's machinists did the work.

About six o'clock Wednesday evening a fire broke out in the upper ward of the village of Catskill, in a barn belonging to the Allen estate, formerly used as a barn for Bull's Head Hotel near the iron bridge, but at present occupied by Samuel Harris, Jr. Besides the building there was destroyed one valuable horse, two carriages, sleighs, together with harness, robes, hay, straw, &c. The loss about $4,000. The origin of the fire is unknown.

The Thomas Powell keeps a Babcock fire extinguisher on the side of the railway leading to the steamboats. A few nights ago the clerk was passing up the stairs and encountered a young man from the rural districts standing before the extinguisher. He had turned the faucet and was pattingly holding the end of the hose in his mouth waiting for the water to come. When he saw the clerk he removed the hose and asked where they kept the cup. "No cup goes with it," replied the polite dispenser of steamboats. "Well, then, how in thunder does the darn old thing work?" Fortunately for the young man and under pressure, the rural gentleman had not interfered with the arrangements that set it to work.

The accident to the V. B. road on her down trip, Wednesday morning, was very trifling, and the passengers suffered but little inconvenience and delay. It appears that one of the rods connecting with the machinery broke and necessitated the momentary stoppage of the steamer. Captain Hitchcock as soon as possible, the boat was again under way, and with but twelve pounds of steam going down but slowly and not arriving at New York until a few minutes after ten. A nervous, irritable being endeavored to get up a scare, while the passengers were as safe as in their own parlors; failing in that, he made false reports of the condition of the vessel. This in the first time that an accident has come across this palatial day boat, and it should not be misinterpreted or exaggerated. The damage was repaired when the boat arrived in New York.

ON THE RAIL.

NEW YORK, Sept. 2, 12:30 A. M.

DEAR FREEMAN: Just arrived eight hours from Ellenville by N. Y. & Oswego M. R. R., which, by the by, is a great institution, "we never shall look up its like again," and don't want to. Having altered the timetable the second time within a fortnight, there was four hours time to kill in Ellenville, but at four P. M. we were to go. Made the first six miles and were only half an hour behind time; changed conductors and cars and were off again about six. Arrived at Middletown shortly after seven o'clock. Mid-town being the first place, the Midland had two depots about one block apart. After a stop of twenty minutes or more at the first one, I found by accident that they were getting supper, (there had been no audible announcement given). They then moved down to the left platform. No. 2 announced that he must leave, and with a commiserating look he left accordingly. In due time we moved on down the road, and by making many stoppages, mostly at points between the stations, we managed to put in the time until midnight before we arrived at our destination. It was a hint that a small farmer down along the line, a protest against our passing his premises at such an untimely hour, and that caused some delay. Then again, farther down, there was a man who said his friend had intimated to him his intention to go down by our train, and as he only lived a short distance into the country we were to stop for him. Not long, for he came in half of three-quarters of an hour, (we took no notes on time) stepping briskly along, but he had forgot his umbrella, which caused more delay. He hurried back, and then, alas he must go back again to kiss his wife and take out an accident policy, which was quite unnecessary. After all when he came to look at the watch, he found it was only half past ten, so we went on without him. At this point, several passengers, not knowing how far the season might be advanced before they got back, wished to send home for their winter clothing; which was indignantly resented. There was much wrangling, and I, as the most reckless, would have damned the whole institution, only that corporations have no souls and it would have done no good. To us, just as we must admit that there was a man with a very poor accordion, furnished to be used the time; but we wanted to go on, and thought to put him with his instrument on the march, to lure the engine into making more speed, but it was not done. However, we got on very well again as far as the Jersey line, when it was whispered that we must carry it, when we had permission from the governor that that foreign state to pass the boundaries. If this were true or not, certainly it was a rough very carefully, but without interference. When we arrived within two or three blocks of the ferry we came to a full stop for about half an hour, perhaps to collect fare enough to come in with good effect. In extension, we should be happy to give as a reason for so much delay a smash of a collision or some minor accident, but there was none, and we insist, though considered as a tenuous—a longing, there could be nothing cheaper than an occupancy of that train, but as a means of locomotion it is simply an absurdity and a swindle. I need not say it was not an "Express," but it was a passenger and mail train. A female train was supposed to travel much faster and far more gracefully. I fear all this is very incoherent, but Mr. Editor I have had a better experience, and am writing from a full heart and an empty stomach, which you will admit is not altogether a normal and healthy condition. All of which is respectfully submitted. L. R. T.

Religious Notices.

Rev. E. S. Culver, of western New York, will preach in the Warr street Baptist Church to-morrow (7th inst.) morning and evening.

Service will be held in the Church of the Holy Spirit on Sunday, to-morrow, at the usual hours in the morning and evening.

Teachers' Institute.

As already announced in our columns, the annual meeting of the Western County Teachers' Institute will open on Monday, the 8th inst., in the lecture room of the First Methodist Church. This meeting is one of great importance to teachers, especially that class purposing to make teaching a life-work. The lessons given from day to day have a direct bearing upon the best modes of teaching, upon the proper discipline of a school, and upon all questions entering into the great work of the best practical education. The conductor of the Institute is an expert, appointed by the State Superintendent for his ripe experience as a teacher, not more than for his ability to teach others what he knows himself, and to do it in a way and effective manner. The Assistant Instructor also is expected to be well versed in all educational matters and well skilled in the art of imparting his stores. This is a rare advantage and should be regarded as a peculiar privilege to receive from these skilled men lessons for a week or two continuously—lessons valuable as gains to the earnest and devoted teacher who is anxious, about all things, to be a workman who shall do honor to one of the noblest and most responsible of professions. We hope the teachers of the county will show by their large attendance at the coming Institute that they really prize the rich opportunity that is again afforded them. The Officers have had a hard day to give to the approaching Institute all the attractions possible. They have secured competent instructors and have a pleasant, commodious and convenient room to meet in. The meeting is held at a delightful season of the year and one best adapted to the convenience of teachers and the surrounding country. Evening lectures of a special interest are provided to diversify and enliven the session. There is no reason why the coming Institute should not be what the Commissioners have aimed to make it, one of the most interesting, instructive and successful that the county has ever seen.

Recorder's Court.

A few days ago Catherine O'Neil was brought into court for having stolen a clock. The charge was made by Patrick McNeel. Catherine said she was not guilty; that she took the clock from the family were looking at her; they could have the clock, but she was not guilty. The Recorder fined the defendant $4, which she paid.

James McHugh was brought before the court Thursday, on the charge of abandoning his family. The complaint was made by his wife Anna McHugh. This is not the first time that this gentleman has been before the court, for he was arrested about a month ago for committing an assault and battery on his wife. He is a resident of the lower part of the city, and for some time has been a school teacher, receiving a salary of $700 per year. Even with this salary he never provided for his family only enough to keep the life in their pockets. The wife, who is a very industrious woman, never received from him money enough to buy the clothes on her back, but was forced to look to her parents for necessities. Still she managed to keep her self and eight children until a few days ago, when this brute of a husband refused to give her more than a dollar a week to feed herself and children. After the Recorder had heard the case as above stated, which was not contradicted by the prisoner, who only sought to excuse himself by saying he considered that amount enough for the family, he found him guilty and held him to bail in two sureties in the sum of $300 each. The prisoner refused to furnish the bail, and said very coolly he would go to jail. The wife cried piteously, and begged him to make her allowance of three dollars a week; if he would do that, said she, "James, I will provide for the family with that amount, and we will live better than ever before. Please, do come!" The husband absolutely refused to do so, and was committed to a superior court on the skin, give an artificial color easily seen, and are very destructive of the color, texture and pliability of the skin itself. Wrinkled, haggard and prematurely old looking, exactly describe the appearance of those who habitually "paint their faces." If you would ever see the clear, healthy and soft skin complexion which nature gives, free from pimples, tan, freckles, or all other disfigurements, use Hand-Spaul—the most effective and fragrant toilet soap ever manufactured. Sold by all dealers at 10 and 15 cents a cake.

Cure for Piles.

Vincent's Magic pile remedy is the most perfect cure for Piles or itching Piles ever offered to the public. It is warranted to give relief to the worst cases in forty-eight hours after the commencement of its use, if the directions for its use are complied with. Price 50 cents per box. C. E. Vincent, Proprietor, Catskill, N. Y. At Wholesale and Retail by Van Deusen Brothers.

Diff-sness of the breast or lungs, or liver sorrows, are relieved by placing two or three thicknesses of flannel wet with Rennie's Pain-Killing Mag. Oil over the sore or inflamed part. Try it. One application will help you very much. Sold by R. Devo and all druggists in Rondout and Kingston.

Firemanic.

Hose Co. No. 4, of Kingston, was in this city last evening visiting some friends of his among our firemen. He informs us that Excelsior Hose Company are making great calculations upon coming to Poughkeepsie at the time of the tournament in October. They will number about forty-five men upon the rope, and will be accompanied by a number of local guests. A fine lot of music will also come with them. We believe that the Company have never before visited our city in a body, but many of the members are by no means unknown to our "fire laddies." Their reputation as a company ever ready to battle with the fiery foe, is among the first in the State. We can assure them a hearty welcome upon the occasion of their visit here.—The News.

A Mischance.

The following item appeared in the issue of The Freeman on Friday morning, under the head of Personal: "A new candidate with positive backing appears in the field. Mr. Vandevort, of Woodstock, after a very strong push for the Sheriff nomination, has, we understand, withdrawn from the field in favor of Mr. West Schmitt of the same town. The latter has the powerful support of Mr. Wm. Russell, of Saugerties, a Moxal, ancient and present, of the Democratic party."

We received a call from Mr. Vandevort yesterday morning, and he assures the readers of The Freeman he has not withdrawn from the field in favor of Mr. West Schmitt, of the same town, but continues to be an active candidate for the nomination for Sheriff of Ulster county, and that Hon. William Russell of Saugerties, is a strong advocate of the nomination of Mr. Vandevort.

An apology is due from us to Mr. Vandevort, but the information came to us so positively that we were deceived. As Mr. V. is still in the field he is a strong candidate.

EDITOR FREEMAN:—Will you please publish the public through your columns that I had nothing to do with the article in your issue regarding Orson Vandevort's alleged withdrawal, and would say that I am his friend. W. SHULTIS.

Not Much.

The Rondout Freeman acknowledges a serenade from Master's string band a few evenings since. The band is a Poughkeepsie organization.—Poughkeepsie Press.

You're mistaken, Osborne. The Master's string band refers to a home production.

Accident.

On Friday forenoon Captain Osterhoudt, who runs a barge for John Maxwell, the stone dealer on Crane's dock, while assisting in lading his vessel, had the misfortune to let a stone fall across one of his fingers, causing a fracture.

The Interview which Mr. Whitney of Shandaken had with a Broadway Journalist.

Yesterday afternoon a tall man, about forty years old, with whiskers, beard, and moustache, called on Police Superintendent Matsell and said that he had been swindled out of $140. In Shandaken, Ulster county, he carries on business as a chair-maker, keeps a saw mill, and works a farm. He comes to New York about once a month to fill orders for chairs, and collects considerable money. On Wednesday he arrived here, transacted some business, and took a room at the Cosmopolitan Hotel. In the evening he made the acquaintance of a stylishly-dressed young man, who by address, questioning, and flattery, induced him to go to the Broadway Hotel, and in fact, all about him. Yesterday, while walking down Broadway, he was accosted by a well-dressed man with, "Why, it is possible, Whitney, my dear fellow, how are you? When did you arrive in town? Where are you staying? How are they all in Shandaken? Come, let's drink!" At length the man said, "The two arrived at 556 Broadway. The friends said, 'By the way, Whitney, I have drawn a prize of $40, and I want to go up here to cash it. Just walk up for a few minutes, and we can go to dinner, and as I am in luck, I'll treat.' Mr. Whitney went upstairs, and entering his friend put down a dollar, and his hand into a bag, whence he drew a forty-dollar prize. 'Good!' exclaimed he, 'why, Whitney, my dear fellow, I am in luck to-day. Come try your hand; draw for me!' Whitney drew, and won a prize of $300. 'Way that is capital,' said his friend. 'Come, now, make a good stake. Put down $140, and you may win a large prize. Even you, why you will still be a gainer of $160.' Whitney put down the money, and his friend insisted on drawing for him. He did draw, and won—a blank. 'That's bad,' said he. 'I fear we can't dine together, Whitney, as I have lost all my money.' So saying he went out, but sitting with the better dealer, but could not induce him either to return a dollar of his own money or the $300 which he had won. Superintendent Matsell handed Mr. Whitney over to Capt. Irving.—N. Y. Sun.
